

3 Travel Apps Every San Francisco Family NEEDS to Survive this Summer

As a mom of 3 kids getting deep into summer can create a problem for the family in finding activities, staycations, and vacation that tick all the boxes.

According to Tracy Repchuk - Best Selling author of 101 Appsolutely Essential Apps, "Google is a great tool, but a search can bring up 100 things that aren't related and add more frustration, so here to show you how to get SuperMan powers, eliminate your kids saying "I'm Bored" and have you fall in love with where you live with these 3 apps."

SF Way - A collection of 50+ San Francisco apps that will guide you to local transit, food, amusements, movies, kid fun spots, walking tours, rest rooms, and even emergency locations because you just never know when an accident happens where is the closest place for you.

SF Kids - SF Kids is written by a local and will take you beyond the usual tourist attractions and into the places that local San Francisco families love.

Gas Buddy - Whether you are in San Francisco on your staycation or traveling further for a vacation, you're going to need this app which tells you where to always get the cheapest gas right where you are.

Tracy's APP formula for guaranteed summer fun

Apps exist for everything, so always grab an App before you go - and when you see one you like - get it - many start off FREE and then charge when they become popular

Plan unusual activities each time and do something different
ie. zip line, hike, go kart, bowling, horse back riding

Pack your bags with the uPackingList Free App - and you'll be ready for any location, duration or season. PROP: Knapsack
